NEW RULES OF LEAGUE

Baseball Protests Are All Disallowed Pro Forma.

Barely a quorum was present at the meeting of the Baseball League at Elks' Hall yesterday afternoon only three out of the five clubs being represented, viz., Punahou by J. O. Carter Jr., Elks by Frank E. Thompson and Malles by U. G. Louhisen.

Senator Paul R. Isenberg, president, occupied the chair, and Attorney General Lorrin Andrews, secretary, was in his place.

Drawing for practice days resulted thus: H. A. C., Monday; Punahou, Tuesday; Maile, Wednesday; Kamehameha, Thursday; Elks, Friday.

Previously reported decisions of the Trustees were ratified by silent consent, being the disallowance of a protest by the Elks on May 2, that of the H. A. C. against Umpire C. T. Wilder's declaring En Sue out at first on June 6 and that of Pat Gleason against being fined $5 by the same umpire on July 8.

It was decided to put a wire netting on top of the grand stand to stop fugitive balls, the League and Trustees to bear the expense equally.

Three proposed new rules were adopted, in brief providing:

1. That there shall be but one umpire. (Mr. Wilder having resigned, Bert Bowers is retained as sole umpire.)

2. No club can sell or assign the whole or any part of its interest in the League to any outsiders without first giving the League a chance to acquire such.

3. Each of the teams constituting the League shall adopt a uniform bearing thereon the name of the club or some emblematic symbol designating said club, and no team shall be allowed to play in any uniform not so adopted by its club.

HAWAII PROBABLY GOT TRICKED IN THE VOTE

of disposing of this vast accumulation has, in the absence of any local paper plants, been partially solved by its being consumed as fuel for the motive power used on the sugar plantations. It is suggested that this information may be useful to paper manufacturers throughout the United States.

United States Consul General Mason, at Berlin, Germany, has forwarded to the Department of Commerce and Labor the following about the beet sugar institute at Berlin:

"One of the notable dedications of this year at Berlin was that of the new institute for the sugar industry on May 8, which took place in the presence of a large assemblage of eminent officials and scientific men, among whom Minister Rheinbaben and several others delivered interesting addresses on the inception and remarkable development of sugar culture in Germany.

"The new institute is a branch of the Agricultural High School, which, with its various departments, occupies several important groups of buildings in the northern portion of Berlin. Beet-sugar cultivation on an industrial scale in Germany dates from but little more than fifty years ago, and toward the end of the sixties there was established in connection with the Agricultural High School a small working laboratory which, under the efficient and zealous direction of Prof. Dr. Scheibler, devoted its somewhat restricted facilities to the cause of scientific sugar production.

"There were then in Germany about 180 more or less primitive sugar factories, which worked up annually 700,000 tons of beets. These had multiplied in 1900 to 390 factories, which consumed 32,200,000 tons of beet, or an average of more than 33,000 tons to each establishment. Meanwhile, the requirements of the time had far transcended the capacity and facilities of the institute founded by Professor Scheibler, and the new, spacious, and completely equipped establishment now opened and dedicated to its work epitomizes fitly the present status of the sugar industry in Germany. It is recognized here above all that the abolition of export bounties by the Brussels conference ended definitely a long and important chapter in the history of beet-sugar production and that the industry, deprived of that form of artificial stimulus, must henceforth work out its own future upon new and independent lines. It is to be a battle in which scientific methods, profoundly studied and skillfully applied, alone can win. To concentrate all the light which science can give upon the task of producing most economically from a given area of land the largest weight of beets with the highest percentage of saccharine element, to harvest the crop, extract, cleanse, and evaporate the juice, and to conduct each step of the process down to the marketing of the refined sugar with the utmost skill and avoidance of waste—this is the lesson which the new institute is designed and equipped to teach. The day of hit-or-miss fertilizing of beet lands—if, indeed, it ever existed in Germany—is definitely past. The successful sugar grower and manufacturer of the future must have at their command and utilize constantly, patiently, and skillfully all that science and experience can teach of correct methods and consummate management."

WEST INDIA CROP.

Consul General W. R. Holloway, at Halifax, Nova Scotia, has forwarded to the Department of Commerce a clipping from the Maritime Merchant and Commercial Review, of June 2, on the West India sugar crop to Canada, which has been promulgated as a bulletin as follows:

"The increase in the importation of West India cane sugar into Canada so far this season has been large. In addition to the regular boats a number of steamships especially for this trade have been chartered. Already five of these specially chartered steamships have arrived at Halifax, landing cargoes of sugar aggregating about 12,000 tons. Two other boats are under charter to arrive, carrying about 4,000 tons, while the regular liners of one large firm are bringing north all they have space to accommodate. This sugar so far has come principally from Barbados and Trinidad. It will be a few weeks yet before there is much movement in the Demerara or British Guiana crop. It is therefore certain that when the import figures for the season come to be tabulated they will be found much larger than in any previous year. There are two principal reasons for the increased importations of cane sugars. One of these is the operation of the German surtax, which has effectively put an end to the importation of beet-root sugar by Canadian refiners. The other is the preference given to Cuban sugars in the United States market, which is closing the door at New York to the product of the British islands. It is fortunate that this occurs at a time when Canada is becoming a better customer for the West India estates, owing to conditions which have lessened the trade in foreign beet-root sugar.

"In a recent interview Mr. Arthur W. Farquharson, Crown solicitor of Jamaica, said:

"A good deal has been heard about the preference which was given by Canada to goods, especially sugar, from the British West Indies, but until very recently any benefit which might have been derived from this preference has gone into the pockets of the brokers, and the producers had not obtained any advantage whatever. Canada could consume from three-fifths to four-fifths of all the sugars produced in the West Indies, but as matters stand at present the great bulk of this commodity is sent to the New York market. From thence it is transhipped to Canada, and the New York broker obtained the rebate upon proof that the sugar was from a British West Indian colony."

"Mr. Farquharson thought that if a slight alteration were made in the law, and the rebate only allowed by the Canadian government on sugars arriving direct at Canadian ports from a West Indian colony, and not through the medium of New York or American brokers, some change might be effected whereby the grower would receive some material advantage, and in his opinion this could only be done by giving preference to sugars in ship's bottoms."
